

European Codes of Conduct for Direct Selling

European Codes of Conduct for Direct Selling

Amended in 1999, 2000, 2004, 2011, 2015, 2018 and 2021

The European Codes of Conduct for Direct Selling are regularly updated to reflect changes in the market place, such as the digital evolution or changes in consumer habits.

The first European Codes of Ethics were adopted in 1995.

This text represents the eighth edition of the European Codes of Conduct.

PREAMBLE

Seldia has adopted these Codes of Conduct in order to ensure that the relationships between Companies, Direct Sellers and Consumers are based on trust and fairness.

The provisions of the Codes may go beyond the legislation in force. Seldia Member Companies are obliged to adopt and enforce these Codes of Conduct as a condition of admission and continuing membership of Seldia.

All Direct Selling Association (DSA) members of Seldia commit to incorporate the substance of the provisions of these Codes into their own national code.

All Companies member of national Direct Selling Associations commit to require that Direct Sellers to follow the standards of the relevant national code and thus also the standards of the European Codes of Conduct.

With termination of its membership in a national Direct Selling Association, the Company is no longer bound by the national code and the European Codes of Conduct. However the provisions of the codes remain applicable to events or transactions which occurred at the time the Company was a member of the DSA.

PREFACE

The European Codes of Conduct consist of the following: (a) the General Section (b) the European Direct Selling Code of Conduct towards Consumers and the (c) European Direct Selling Code of Conduct towards Direct Sellers, between Direct Sellers and between Companies.

National Direct Selling Associations (DSAs) may use and publish the European Direct Selling Code of Conduct towards Consumers and the European Direct Selling Code of Conduct towards Direct Sellers, between Direct Sellers and between Companies separately and in a different manner of distribution if required.

DSAs may also combine the two codes and use and publish them as a single entity.

The Codes contain standards of ethical behaviour for Direct Selling Companies and Direct Sellers. Companies and Direct Sellers are required to comply with the law and therefore the Codes do not restate all legal obligations. It is recommended that the Codes be used as evidence of industry standards.

Every DSA Member Company pledges to abide by the national code as a condition of admission and continuing membership in the DSA. Every DSA Member Company shall be required to promote to the public its DSA affiliation as well as the Codes and the national codes.

Every Seldia Member Company pledges to abide by the Codes as a condition of admission and continuing membership in Seldia for its direct selling activities within a country of the EEA: (a) without a DSA; (b) without a DSA in membership of Seldia.

To the extent that the applicable rules of the national code of a DSA -that is not a member of Seldia- conflict, they will prevail over the Codes.

Should a Company be subject to a code complaint in a country in which it is not a member, the Company must accept jurisdiction of the DSA Code Administrator in its home country (or if the company is not a member in its home country, any country in which it is a DSA member), and shall bear reasonable costs incurred by the home country DSA Code Administrator associated with resolution of the complaint. Moreover, the DSA Code Administrator of the home country may coordinate with the DSA Code Administrator (if one exists) of the complainant's country and, in evaluating the alleged code complaint, apply, in order of priority, (i) the standards of the code of ethics in the country in which the complaint is filed, or, (ii) the standards of the code of ethics in the company's home country, or (iii) at a minimum, the standards set forth in these Codes or the WFDSA Code of Ethics, when those apply.
